The circa 1750 Conklin House, which is the first house museum on Long Island, has been a significant part of the Huntington community for over 250 years. In commemoration of the 100th anniversary of ownership of the Conklin House by the Huntington Historical Society please join us as Zach Studenroth discusses the architectural evolution of this significant Huntington treasure. The Conklin House, featuring the brand new exhibit “All Things Conklin”, will be open immediately following the lecture.
