During the summer, the most important support you can give your child is to encourage literacy experiences daily.

* Read * Write * Speak * Listen * Present *

And most importantly, HAVE FUN!

---

Literacy in the BACKYARD

Read an informational book about the outdoors. Listen for and observe signs of nature.

Go to a garden, and read aloud a book to a younger sibling.

Literacy at the BEACH

Write a poem about what you hear, smell, taste, feel, and see.

Read a favorite series or magazine.

Play “I Spy” using descriptive language.

---

Literacy in the CAR

Listen to a book on CD.

Sing a catchy song together.

Discuss where you are going and what you will do there.

Look for license plates and signs to read as you travel.

Literacy on a RAINY DAY

Cozy up with a good book.

Try out a new genre, for example: science fiction books, biographies, mysteries, or comic books.

Write a journal entry about your most exciting day of summer vacation thus far.

Watch a movie, and compare it to the book.

---

Literacy at a BARBEQUE

Write a menu and a favorite recipe.

Create a play to perform after the meal.

Interview guests to learn more about them.

Tell a spooky story while roasting marshmallows.
